To register: click “register” on main eBay page, fill in basic personal information, and choose a username and password you will use to log in and bid on items.

Ebay offers:

Auctions: the user who offers the highest bid within a specified time frame wins the item.

Buy-it-now: Buyers can choose to pay for the item at a fixed price. Often times, sellers offer items as Buy-it-Now as well as a lower initial auction bid price. Once a bid has been placed, the buy-it-now option is no longer available on the item, and the highest bidder wins the item, as usual.

Best Offer: Buyers can pay the fixed “Buy It Now” price or contact the seller with their own offer.

Want it Now: Lets you post what you want to a forum in the hopes that a seller offers what you need.

My eBay

*can be accessed from the main eBay page.

Regular vs. Advanced Searching

You can find most items on eBay using basic search keywords.

Additional search commands
Search commands for more specific searches include:

1. Use quotations around words that you would to be searched in direct order.

   !Search Result

2. Use minus sign in front of words you want to exclude from searches. A minus sign may be added to multiple words you want to exclude.

   !Search Result

3. If you want to search for either of two words, enter them in parentheses.

   !Search Result

4. To search for various endings on a word, use an asterisk, ex: myster* book* - searches the keywords book and books, as well as mystery and mysteries. This is also helpful if you are unsure of the spelling of a word.

   !Search Result

5. To search for only a specific spelling of a word, add parentheses, ex: Florida “keys” will pull up titles with the word “keys,” but not the word key.
A combined search example:

Antique* 193* -1934

This search will pull up all instances of the words “antique” or “antiques,” in addition to all instances of “1930’s,” “1930s” and specific years in the 1930s except for 1934.

OTHER search options for buyers and sellers:

To find helpful other keywords for items you are interested, carefully look at the keywords used in seller’s listings. If you notice a user bidding on many of the same items as you, you can check the user’s buying history (through their feedback page) and see what other sellers they are buying from. You can see what items he/she has won but not what the buyer is bidding on in the present. Bidder IDs are now kept private.

If you are the seller, find the exact item you are trying to sell, or something very similar, and review how other sellers have described it. Here, a “completed listing” search would help because you could also see the final price of the item.

Tip: use specific search words, try keyword and category searches together and separately, use the “save search” feature once you find a search that works well for you. By clicking on this option you can have emails sent automatically for up to six months to inform you of an item that has been listed that meets your search parameters.

Advanced Search: choose specific buyer locations, find members, or search for “completed listings,” or auctions that have already ended.

Ebay acronyms:

Common acronyms used in titles or descriptions include:

- B&W: Black and white
- NWT: New with tags
- NWOT: New without tags
- NIB: New in box
NRFB: Never removed from box
HTF: Hard to find
LTD: Limited Edition
OOP: Out of Print
VHTF: Very hard to find

Anatomy of a Listing

How to Bid

You may bid for an item at any time during the auction by clicking on “Place Bid” on the item page. You will then be prompted to place your bid amount. You may place a bid at a minimum increment or at the maximum you are willing to pay. eBay will keep your maximum bid private until someone has outbid you.

Example: The current bid on an item is $48.50, with the lowest next bid at $50. You place a maximum bid of $90, but eBay will publicly display $50 as the highest bid. Someone bids $75. You remain the highest bidder, and other bidders will have continue bidding and surpass your $90 bid to become the highest bidder.

Based on your account settings, you may receive emails letting you know when you have been outbid. You may also receive outbid alerts on your cell phone or have them messaged to you via Skype, Yahoo, Windows Live, or AOL.

Reserve: Some sellers offer a low starting bid, but place a reserve price on item offers a minimum actual selling price. If the bids have not reached the reserve price by the end of the auction, the seller

Bidding Tips:

1. Watch an item, and bid closer to the end of an auction
2. Bid in odd increments. Many buyers bid in whole numbers, therefore sometimes a few extra cents in your maximum bid may result in a win.
3. Research similar items on eBay and get a sense of how much you should bid.
4. Use proxy bidding when possible.

Retracting or canceling bids: Retracting bids can be done under certain circumstances, such as accidentally typing in the wrong amount or the description of the item has changed. Sellers reserve the right to cancel bids.

Shill bidding: is the deliberate placing of bids to artificially raise the price of an item. This is against eBay guidelines.

Private Listings: some auctions are selected by sellers to be private listings, protecting the identities of the bidders.

Proxy Bidding

While eBay currently offers the Bid Assistant option for bidding on items on your behalf, there are online services outside of eBay that assist in proxy bidding without some of the limitations of the Bid Assistant, for a nominal fee. These services include:

Auction Sniper: www.auctionsniper.com

Sign up with your eBay username and password, and Auction Sniper will bid on your behalf seconds before the end of the auction, at interval increments. Current fees: 1% of the final auction price, with a minimum of 25 cents and a maximum of $9.95 for each auction that you win.

BidNapper: http://www.bidnapper.com/
BidNapper is another well-known proxy bidding website, with services similar to that of Auction Sniper, and with pricing for unlimited monthly sniping (ex. $8-$11 for one month) or per-snipe use (10 snipes for $20-22).

Tip! The best strategy is to snipe the maximum amount you are willing to spend. Your actual payment may be less, depending on the bids of others. By using proxy bidding, you will not get caught up in the heat of a bidding war and spend more money than planned, nor will you have to wait by your computer as the auction ends.

Tip! Even when using proxy bidding, occasionally check in and make sure you have not been outbid. Even though you should receive an email from Auction Sniper or Bidnapper, a delay in receiving the email could cost you a win.

Tip! Even when bidding through these proxy bidding sites, it is helpful to “watch” the item through eBay and receive reminders before the auction ends. Also, this way you have a record of what you are sniping on your eBay account as well.

How to pay

Always consult seller notes for payment information details.

eBay transactions are made using Paypal, http://www.paypal.com, a third party service that allows for secure online credit card or bank payments between two parties without sharing financial information. Upon winning an auction, you will receive an email automatically generated by or you can also the item in your “My eBay” folder, and click the item itself where you will be presented with a “Pay Now” button. Your address is automatically saved so when you do pay the seller receives all your info on delivery via email.

Bidpay, http://www.bidpay.com, is another online payment option, but is generally less popular among sellers than Paypal.

*Paypal is a company owned by eBay as a seller a small percentage is subtracted as a fee by Paypal/eBay.
How to Sell

What typically sells on eBay?

Technically, anything can be sold- from key chains to real estate. The most lucrative auctions for sellers are typically antiques and collectibles, designer clothing and accessories, electronics, event tickets, and musical instruments, among others. If you are looking to make more money, it is best to find your niche market on eBay and use it.

Before you list:

1. To estimate the selling price of the item you would to list, research the same or similar items on eBay. Some items are simply not worth selling, or may be more worthwhile to sell as part of a lot. Ex: one pair of pants may not sell, but a lot of 5 pairs of pants in the same size may.

2. When listing your item, make sure the auction ends at a time convenient for buyers to be at their computers. Weekday evenings are typically the best times to end auctions, but you may want research the times similar successful auctions end, and see if you notice a pattern.

The seller fees on eBay are calculated based on insertion and final-value fee schedules. http://pages.ebay.com/help/sell/fees.html

Other options include dropping off your items at companies that will sell your items for you on eBay, such as iSold it, http://www.i-soldit.com. These companies will photograph, list, and mail your items for you in exchange for a commission.

Leaving and receiving comments

Feedback is important for both buyers and sellers in order to build up the confidence of other eBay users. Before purchasing, a buyer may want to check comments left for a seller by other buyers, as well as the comments the seller made for other buyers.

Sellers are allowed to cancel bids from buyers with negative feedback, or no feedback at all.
Once you have received your item, you may leave positive, neutral, or negative feedback for the seller. You may do so by finding the item in “My eBay” and clicking on “Leave Feedback.” In turn, the seller will leave you feedback based on your payment speed and other communications.

Sellers are only given the option of leaving positive feedback ...or no feedback at all for the buyer. This is a recent controversial eBay decision based on their belief that buyers were hesitant to leave honest feedback for fear of “retaliatory” feedback.

Before placing negative feedback, users normally try to resolve the issue by contacting the seller or buyer. All users may respond to negative feedback, and mutual negative feedback may be withdrawn, but the feedback page will still display that feedback comments have been mutually withdrawn.
