ANNUAL REPORT OF THE TRUSTEES
OF THE
NEW YORK SOCIETY LIBRARY.

The Trustees of the New York Society Library respectfully submit to the shareholders of the corporation the following report of its affairs at the close of the fiscal year, on the 31st day of March, 1883.

The report of the Treasurer, dated April 1, 1883, with that of the committee appointed to audit the accounts of this corporation, and to make an inventory of its real and personal property, excepting the books which are herewith submitted, give all needed information as to the resources and financial condition of the Institution.

The real estate at the junction of Worth and Chatham Streets, in which a large part of the recent endowments of the Library is now invested, although purchased for protection under foreclosure of the mortgages upon it, in which the funds representing such endowments were invested, is now well rented, producing to the corporation a net income of seven and one-half per cent. upon the amount which it has cost. A portion of the property, where was only a low building of no value when the premises were acquired by the Library, is now covered by a substantial and handsome building, erected by the tenants.

Although the income which is applicable to the general purposes and expenses of the Institution does not show any increase, yet 1,537 volumes of general literature have been added to the Library during the year, while the usual number of periodicals and newspapers have been taken. The circulation of books during the year has amounted to about 29,000 volumes given out, on about 12,000 applications from shareholders and subscribers.
The number of visitors using the Library is constantly increasing, although many of those accustomed to frequent the Library now have their residences at a considerable distance from the Library building. For the convenience of such members, books are now sent to their residences at a small charge. In view of the fact that this Library has always been for the families of its members, and as everything should be done which will make it most conveniently available to them, such deliveries should be made free whenever the income of the Library will justify the employment of messengers for that purpose. This will obviate the chief objection to the present situation of the Library. From the income of the "John C. Green" fund $2,264 has been expended in the purchase of works of art for the "Green alcove," and of books in general literature (exclusive of fiction) for the Library proper, leaving at the close of the Treasurer's report $1,749.22 of that income unexpended, which, added to the income of the ensuing year, will place at the command of the Library Committee for that year larger resources than usual. Of this amount some $300 46 will be available for the purchase of books in general literature.

During the year the "Green alcove" has been enriched by a gift of forty-eight volumes of signal value and beauty, many of them very rare, which, added to former contributions, now fill the alcove to its utmost capacity, rendering its enlargement necessary, plans for which are now under consideration.

By the death of its late Chairman, the Board of Trustees and the Institution have met with a great loss, which has been expressed in the following memorial, inscribed in the minutes of the Board, and is now submitted by the Trustees to their fellow members of the New York Society Library:

"Frederic de Peyster was born in New York, in 1796. He was descended from an ancient and honorable family of Haarlem, in Holland, one of the members of which, Johannes de Peyster, settled in New Amsterdam in 1640, where he was an eminent citizen, and after holding many minor offices, was appointed Mayor of the city.

"The subject of this minute gave early proof of the industry and ability which were to constitute him a worthy descendant of his distinguished ancestor, and were to cause his co-operation and his counsel to be desired and sought where literature is cultivated and good deeds encouraged. He was graduated from Columbia College in 1816, in a class noted for its academic achievements.

"Like many of his forefathers, he was called to the bar, were his skill in equity practice procured him the appointment of Master in Chancery in 1820.

"So many biographical sketches of Mr. de Peyster are in existence that we refrain from mentioning the long list of offices and honors to which he was elected by leading financial and charitable institutions desiring the benefit of his legal acquirements, hereditary honesty, and good sense in all things.
"Living in an age almost unexampled for its personal impeachments, he stood steadfast for the right and unassailed.

"An ample fortune, partly inherited, enabled him to give free scope to his generous impulses, and his gifts and benefactions were measured with no niggardly hand. To the Historical Society, of which he was a member during some sixty years, and an officer nearly twenty-five, he presented the magnificent statue of 'The Indian,' by Thomas Crawford, one of the finest and most important pieces of sculpture yet executed by an American.

"From the day when he first became Chairman of our Board, he showed an almost affectionate interest in the affairs of the Library, and had legitimate and delightful pride in its increasing prosperity and usefulness.

"During seventy years he had lived among books, and he loved them as men do who owe to communion with 'books that are books,' their best success and their purest pleasure.

"Among Mr. de Peyster's most marked characteristics were his unfailing cheerfulness and courtly courtesy. Many of us, as we get on in life, are made by circumstances to feel that if we do not quite know whether we are going, at least we are painfully aware of the fatigue of the journey. To him declining years and failing strength brought no gloomy doubt, no impairment of purpose, no weakening of religious faith and reliance. His earnest, loyal nature grew strong with years, until death came, when 'the day breaks and the shadows flee away.'"

New York, April 1, 1883.

ROBERT LENOX KENNEDY,
Chairman.
